Democritus of Abdera is best known for his atomic theory but he was also an excellent geometer. Very little is known of his life but we know that Leucippus was his teacher. Democritus certainly visited Athens when he was a young man, principally to visit Anaxagoras, but Democritus complained how little he was known there. He said, according to Diogenes Laertius writing in the second century AD ...

Democritus is shown deep in thought with a book in his lap among heaps of bones and the debris of human activity. Books, papers, a helmet, and artist's brushes are buried in piles of bones and skulls. The melodramatic pose is a reference to the Ancient writer's descriptions of the stoic philosopher Democritus as a lonely scholar: The crumbling objects refer to his idea that everything is ...
