Image Analysis. Image Analysis The women in this fiction are represented as smart and intelligent but degraded and rendered powerless by men around them. Lois is a housewife in this fiction but she is represented as a smart and mature woman. She makes smart decisions and has sense. For example, when the salesman presented them with the options of whether keeping the boat or getting the mystery box, she did not hesitate to choose the boat knowing that there would be logically a batch in the ...

Image Analysis. September 2006. On my page on "Examples of Critical Reading," I write that critical reading "means asking what we can learn from the way the author selected and arranged facts the way she did." The same is true of images, only we look for the selection and arrangement of visual elements, rather than facts. Here are three examples of critical readings of images. Note how ...

The easiest way to analyze newspaper language is to focus on the first sentence of the article, since this sentence summarizes the whole article. Try to find all the important phrases in it to learn the who, what, where, when, and how of the story. Look at the verb tenses as well, since papers use past tense verbs to refer to the recent past, and present tense verbs to refer to the near future.
